This classic official photographic history from the U.S. Army's Center of Military History presents a comprehensive portrait of World War II in Europe. Approximately 500 striking black-and-white photos, taken by military photographers assigned to the Signal Corps or affiliated with Yank Magazine, capture people, equipment, aerial operations, combat, and general life direct from the front lines. The book covers the activities of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Coast Guard, and records the dramatic events of 1942-1945, including the buildup of forces in the United Kingdom and the campaigns in North Africa, Middle East, Sicily, Italy, and Southern France. All of the photos are drawn from the official holdings of the National Archives, and have been freshly reproduced for this edition. Full citations for each photo are listed in the back of the book to make it easy for interested readers to locate and purchase prints directly from the National Archives.
