Frozen Haiku P.J. Reed

Frozen Haiku is a thought-provoking collection of imaginative, visually stunning haiku from the contemporary English poet P.J. Reed.

This collection explores the magical transformations, discoveries, and interactions with nature as winter tightens her grip over the frozen Devon landscape.

broken tree unleafed

stands ivy wrapped in comfort

a cold wind blows white

Devon in winter is an enchanted place. P.J. Reed has studied the changes of winter and its effects on the countryside, wildlife, and people. This study has resulted in a breathtaking series of moments of beauty and savagery captured forever in her fresh, crisp verse, 'a glance of sunshine' is a fascinating example of a beautiful image captured and shared.

I walk on cloud tops

floating through the misted fields

the wind calls my name

The concise, contemporary freshness of P.J.'s verse is well suited to the beauty of traditional haiku.

This is the second book in her haiku collection.
