This lesson on Hearing Loss includes a complete training packet. Each in-service packet takes approximately one hour to complete and fully meets the Medicare in-service training requirements. As aides need training, you can make as many copies as you want - there s no restriction when used with aides assigned from your office location. Remember that Home Health Aides must have 12 hours of in-service training every year.

LESSON OBJECTIVES Upon completion of this program, the home health aide will be able to: Identify three symptoms of hearing loss Identify two different types of hearing aids and devices available to patients, and Describe three ways to help patients adjust to hearing loss. OVERVIEW Hearing loss is one of the most common conditions affecting older adults. About 30% of Americans over 60, and up to half of those 75 and older, have hearing loss. Hearing affects a patient s ability to communicate, which plays an important part in a successful recovery. Communication disorders can greatly affect the well being of patients. Further, hearing affects how well patients understand medical advice, and whether they are able to hear warnings and alarms. Hearing loss is under-reported by the elderly and may go untreated. Home health aides have an important role in recognizing and reporting signs and symptoms of hearing loss. Understanding what the patient with hearing loss is feeling helps home health aides deliver the best care.
